

RISK ADVIZER

Reduce the Risk, Cost & Aggravation of an OIG Audit

The Office of Inspector General (OIG) is actively auditing Medicare Advantage plans. These audits may have significant implications for plans, potentially resulting in substantial repayments, reputational damage, and non-compliance penalties.

The OIG is reviewing data submitted by health plans and selecting plans with a high likelihood of incorrect codes based on the OIG's criteria. So far, plans selected for audit have a less than 10% rate of successfully defending reviewed cases.

Don't Wait for an OIG Audit Notice: 5 Reasons to Act Now

- 1. Risk of substantial repayments. Starting with plan year 2018, the OIG plans to extrapolate the repayment required across the universe of suspected cases; in most cases this will result in multi-million dollar repayments.
- 2. Greater revenue confidence. Proactive controls and verification can help mitigate the risk of restating earnings in the future.
- 3. High cost of audits. Knowing your data and acting on it can help avoid being the target of an OIG audit. Audits cost money, require expensive legal and actuarial support, and distract operational staff from core business activities.
- 4. Avoid being a target. Know your data and establish meaningful controls to address Risk Adjustment data concerns on your terms.
- 5. Reputation risk. If your plan is audited and significant findings are reported, it may erode trust among beneficiaries, providers, and stakeholders. It can also impact expansion plans into new markets and provide competitors with marketing advantage.

ATTAC Consulting Group helps plans quickly evaluate risk based on OIG criteria, identify suspect cases and address cases proactively – reducing the risk and aggravation of an OIG audit. Our solution, Risk Advizer, applies ATTAC's targeting analytics to CMS standard files, which ensures your plan's level of effort is minimal.
